Paragraph 2 - Payments and Guarantees

2.1 Guarantees

Unless otherwise contractually stipulated, the client must provide a bank guarantee to the carrier in the amount of not less than 3/12 (three twelfths) of the contract value plus applicable VAT. The bank guarantee must be issued by either a bank or a primary insurance institution and subject to carrier authorization.

The purpose of the deposit is to guarantee proper adherence to all contractual obligations and compensation of damages in the event of non-fulfillment of the aforementioned obligations, as well as to ensure compensation for any outstanding amounts by the client to the transport provider.

The carrier still reserves the right to take action to obtain compensation in the event of major damage incurred due to the client's non-compliance.

The amount of the guarantee is determined by a previously established transport schedule and agreed upon the closing of the contract.

Should the client and the transport provider agree on further transport schedules, the amount of the guarantee will have to be adjusted to match the 3/12 (three twelfths) minimum of the estimated total of each successive transport schedule.

In the event that the client fails to extend the guarantee, Adriafer Srl will have the right to refuse the additional service requested.

The guarantee needs to provide explicitly:

- relinquish the benefit of enforcement of the main borrower;
- relinquish the option of letting the terms expire as per Art. 1957 of the civil code;
- its coming into effect within fifteen days upon a simple written request by the carrier.

As per the present article, the guarantee will be reinstated upon expiration of the client agreement, by means of communicating the release of the same guarantee by the carrier.

Under no circumstance will the guarantee be reinstated prior to establishing any disputes inherent to the execution of the contract.

The carrier reserves the right to waive any clause of the present article.

Specifically, the carrier always reserves the right to include in the client agreement obligations for the client to stipulate and provide further and greater guarantees, as well as provide a longer duration of those guarantees, when deemed opportune relative to the features, size, and complexity of the services requested therein.
